UGC suggest the improvement of quality in higher education system. The main aim of UGC is to increase standards and quality in higher education. It includes need based curriculum, student centric learning, ICT based teaching and continuous evaluation.

The Department of Commerce has taken an initiative to invite Dr.T. Geetha Swaminathan, Former Vice Principal, Stella Maris, Chennai as a Resource Person to enlighten the faculty on CBCS

Dr.T. Geetha Swaminathan said that the academic reforms recommended by UGC recently, lead to overall improvement in higher education. She said that due to lot of diversity in the system of higher education there are many approaches to be followed by the universities in their examination, grading and evaluation systems.

When the colleges have flexibility and freedom in designing their own curriculum, need based curriculum is to be framed. They have to follow Grading system, Semester system and Choice Based Credit system.

Programme is to be divided into Core, Elective courses and Foundation Courses. They have to follow continuous evaluation and semester system.
