Date: 27-01-2024

Resource Persons:

1. Mr. Raushan Kumar Singh, C.E.O, Fulectronix Technologies, TBIF, IIT Ropar, Punjab

3. Dr. B. Annapurna, Professor Dept. Computer Science, KLU, Vijayawada

Description of the Programme:

During the FDP meeting, Mr Raushan Kumar Singh discussed various topics related to projects and explained the essential tools required for research. He also shared some AI tools that can assist in teaching to make it more effective. Additionally, he provided insights on how students' projects can be published.

Dr. B. Annapurna explained the importance of publishing research papers in the competitive world of academia. She also discussed the indexing and ranking of journals, emphasizing the significance of papers published in well-indexed journals, which is a crucial metric for NAAC evaluation.

Feedback/Outcome of the Programme:

Faculty are using AI Tools such as Wonder slide, in video, draw.io etc. in their teaching. These tools have proved to be beneficial in saving time while preparing ppts and video lessons for classes. Faculty involved in research found Overleaf and Mendeley tools very much useful for their works. Faculty are motivated to do projects that involve innovation.

Date : 06-01-2024

Resource Person: Dr. Madhusmita Mohanty
Assistant Professor Sr. Grade I
(Finance & Analytics) School of Business
Vellore Institute of Technology, Amaravati, AP.

Description of the Programme:
Dr. Madhusmita's guidance on technical writing enlightened the faculty. She shared some valuable insights on how to select a topic or subject, taking into account previous knowledge, personal or professional experience, course content, and interest. She also enlightened the faculty on the process of publishing papers in international journals and conferences. Moreover, she outlined some essential steps to follow while writing a research paper, with a particular focus on the conclusion. She also gave an overview of databases such as SCOPUS, WOS, Science Direct, IEEE Xplore, and ASC, which are helpful in the research process. Dr. Madhusmita recommended several suitable journals, depending on the research conducted, which would ensure quality publications. Her constructive feedback and insights were very helpful, which enhanced the confidence in the faculty's technical writing skills and ability to publish quality papers in well-indexed journals.
